THE CAROLINA BLUEBOOK

EDITOR: Rick Brewer

STAFF ASSISTANTS: Denise Watson, Owen Davis, Steve Mann and Cindy Lutz.

LITHOGRAPHED AND DESIGNED By
Fisher-Harrison Corporation, Greensboro, N. C.

PHOTOGRAPHY: The front cover shot of Carolina seniors Bill Chambers, Mitch Kupchak and Dave Hanners was taken on the Tar Heel campus by Charles Cooper. The back cover picture of Mitch Kupchak was taken by Dwight McAlister. Photographs inside the were taken by Cooper, Gary Lobraico, the Bradley Photographers of Dallas, Hugh Morton, and many of the fine student photographers at the University of North Carolina. The Carolina Sports Information Office would also like to recognize Gywnn Raker, a Carolina alumnus from Atlanta, who did the excellent sketches that appear on the player pages.

The University of North Carolina has one of the largest and most enthusiastic press followings in America and interest is growing greater every year.

The Carmichael Auditorium press box is filled to capacity for every home game. Every daily newspaper in the state of North Carolina, and many from surrounding states, cover all the Tar Heel games.

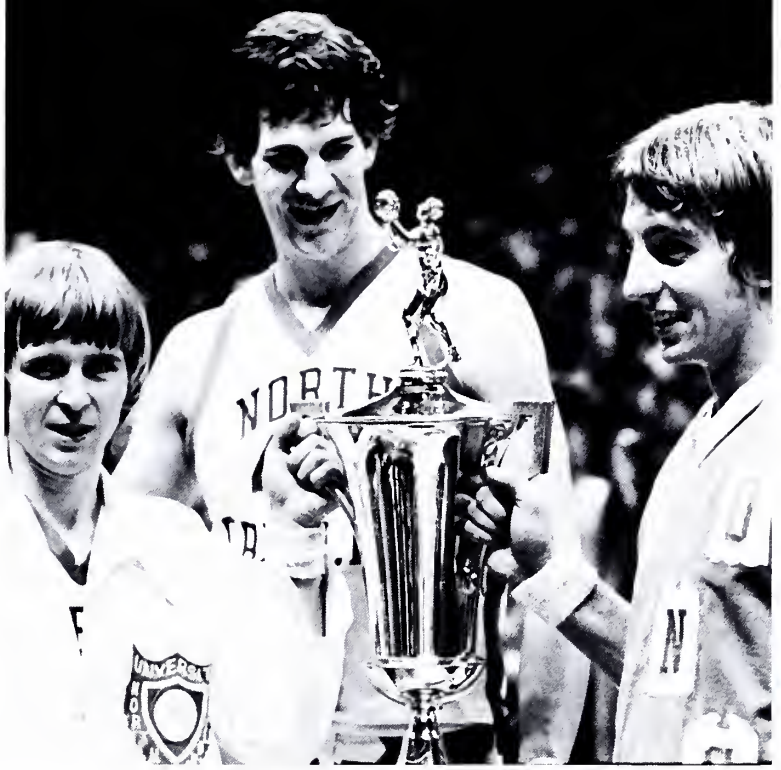
Carolina's Basketball Radio Network is one of the largest in the entire nation. Tar Heel games can be heard from the Bahamas to Canada. The network is handled by WCHL Radio in Chapel Hill with Jim Heavner as manager. Woody Durham, popular sportscaster at WFMY-TV in Greensboro, does the play-by-play with Heavner and Bob Holliday of WCHL providing color commentary.

Durham also serves as emcee throughout the season on The Dean Smith Show which is televised each week across the state of North Carolina.

Twenty Carolina games are scheduled to be televised during the upcoming season. Eleven games will be shown across the state of North Carolina under the production of WRET-TV in Charlotte. Seven games will be shown regionally by the C. D. Chesley Company on the Atlantic Coast Conference Game of the Week. Two Tar Heel games will be nationally televised.

Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be secured by contacting Rick Brewer, the University's Sports Information Director. Requests are screened with care to insure a working press box. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the Basketball Writers Association of America.

Western Union facilities are not available in Carmichael Auditorium. However, the Carolina Sports Information Office does provide several phones for writers to use in sending copy. The University also has one telecopier which is available on a first-come, first-serve basis after each game. It is strongly suggested, however, that whenever possible, writers bring their own telecopiers.



TAR HEEL TRADITION

The University of North Carolina has one of the greatest basketball traditions in America. Winning basketball teams are as much a part of Carolina as the Old Well or the Bell Tower.

Tar Heel teams have been in the national headlines for years and are annually ranked among the elite of the college game.

Since the sport began here in 1911, Caroiina has recorded a record of 1,086 wins and only 440 losses. Fifty-five of the school's 65 teams have had winning records.

Carolina ranks with Kentucky and St. John's as the three teams with the best won-lost percentage over the last 50 years. Carolina is one of only a few schools which has won over 1,000 games.

The Tar Heels are one of only five teams to capture both a National Collegiate Athletic Association and National Invitation Tournament championship. The Tar Heels won the NCAA crown in 1957 with a perfect 32-0 record and then swept the NIT in 1971. Carolina was also voted national champion in 1924 with a 23-0 record.

Despite the University's long and storied basketball past, the sport has gotten even more popular here in the last decade. During the last 10 seasons, only UCLA has won more games than Carolina.

The Tar Heels have played in a national post-season tournament each of the past nine years. The 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972 and 1975 teams won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and advanced into NCAA play. The Tar Heels won the Eastern Regionals in 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1972 and advanced to the national finals. The 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 teams went to the NIT in New York.

Carolina has won the NCAA's Eastern Regional Tournament five times since 1946. No other school has won more than three.

In the past nine years under Dean Smith, Carolina has won 224 games and lost only 57. That's an average of roughly 25-6 a season, one of the most amazing marks in collegiate athletics.

The Tar Heels have managed these feats against the toughest opposition in America. In each of the past nine years, Carolina's schedule has been ranked as one of the 10 toughest in the country.

Carolina plays big-name opponents from across America. In recent seasons Carolina has met such teams as Kentucky, Ohio State, St. John's, Utah, Louisville, California, Princeton, Houston, Florida State, Notre Dame, Alabama, Purdue, Pittsburgh and Providence.

But nowhere is the competition keener than in Carolina's own league—the ACC. Teams in the conference, besides Carolina, are Clemson, Duke, Maryland, N. C. State, Virginia and Wake Forest.

The Tar Heel fame in basketball has even spread abroad. In 1971 the Tar Heels went to Madrid, Spain and captured the championship of the International Christmas Tournament. Carolina played in that same tournament again last season.

Tournament play is nothing new for Carolina, however. The Tar Heels have won 34 tournament championships in the sport's 65 years in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels have competed in such tournaments as the Far West Classic in Portland; the Holiday Festival in New York City; the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu.

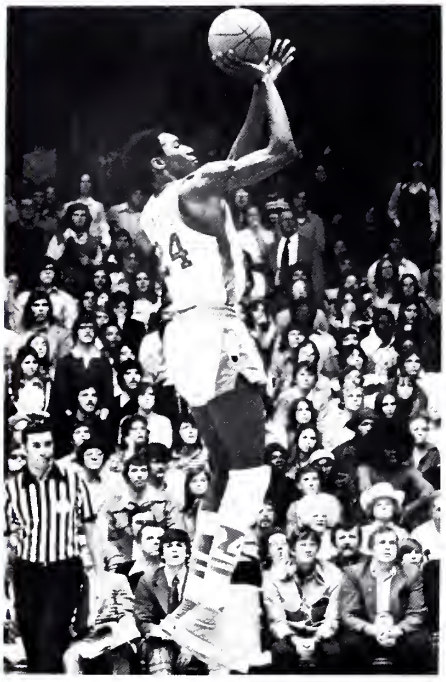
Carolina has had a player on each of the last three U. S. Olympic teams. Larry Brown, now coach of the ABA's Denver Nuggets, starred on the 1964 team which won the championship in Tokyo. Charlie Scott was a member of the 1968 championship team at Mexico City. Then Bobby Jones played on the 1972 squad in Munich.

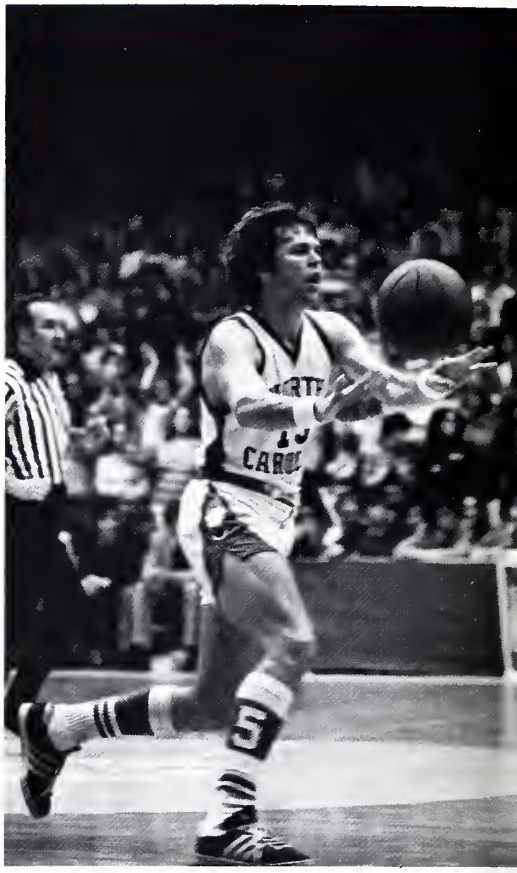
There have been dozens of All-American players at Carolina. Seven of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Robert McAdoo and Bobby Jones.

The crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the sport's popularity in Chapel Hill. Every game is a sellout in beautiful Carmichael Auditorium. Students sleep at the Auditorium the night before they are to pick up tickets, just to make sure they get into the games. The pressbox at every home game is always filled to capacity.

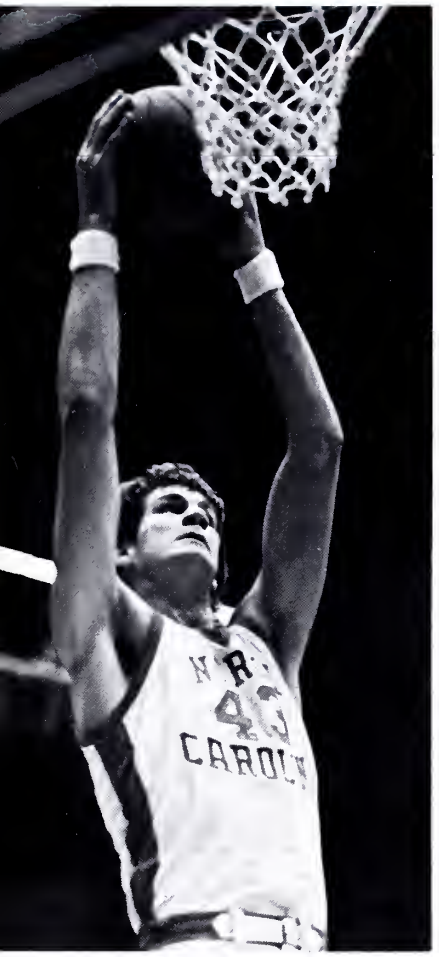
These are just some of the reasons why nothing could be finer than basketball at Carolina.

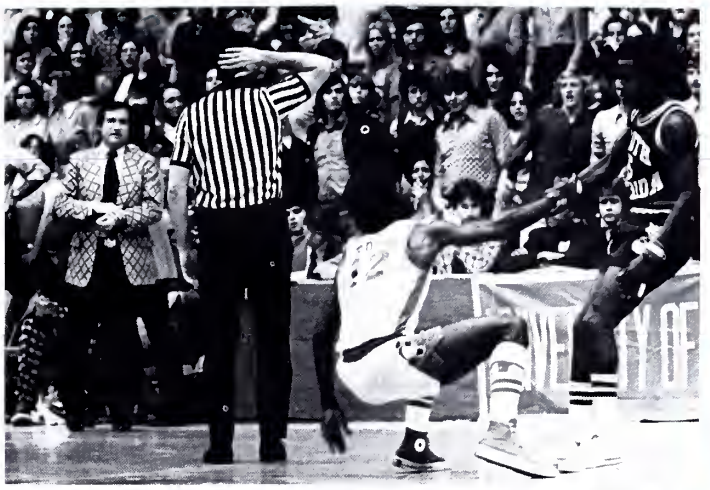
1974-75: ANOTHER





CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON





FEREBEE TAYLOR

CHANCELLOR

Under Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor, the University of North Carolina has continued to grow and maintain its excellence as an academic institution while the University's athletic teams have continued to excel, too.

Chancellor Taylor assumed his post in 1972 and has placed special emphasis on the public service aspect of the University. Many short courses, workshops and special projects have been organized, serving the entire population of the state as well as the students and residents of the University community.

Taylor has long been a strong supporter of Carolina athletics and believes the athletic department is an important part of the total University. He expresses the hope that all students will take advantage of what the UNC athletic program offers, either as participants or as spectators.

"I'm proud of our athletic tradition," says Taylor "and our basketball teams have always given us a lot to cheer about.

"At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, we will continue to strive for excellence in our athletic department, just as we will in all other departments."

Carolina coach Dean Smith recognizes the chancellor's loyal interest in Tar Heel basketball.

"We're happy that we have a chancellor who feels so strongly about athletics," says Smith. "He visits our practices regularly and rarely ever misses a game."

Chancellor Taylor is a Carolina graduate, having received an A.B. degree in American history in 1942. He was the first Jackson Scholar at UNC (this scholarship was the first four-year grant) and he served as president of Phi Beta Kappa, making straight A's for three straight years.

Taylor was president of the University Club, speaker of the Student Legislature and a member of the Order of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

He served in the U. S. Navy during World War II and reached the rank of lieutenant. Following his active duty, Taylor entered Harvard Law School and received an LL.B. cum laude in 1955.

He then enrolled in Balliol College at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar, receiving a B.A. in philosophy, politics and economics in 1951. He received an M.A. from Oxford in 1955.

The chancellor then practiced law in New York City until returning to Chapel Hill in the spring of 1968 as a visiting professor at the UNC Law School.

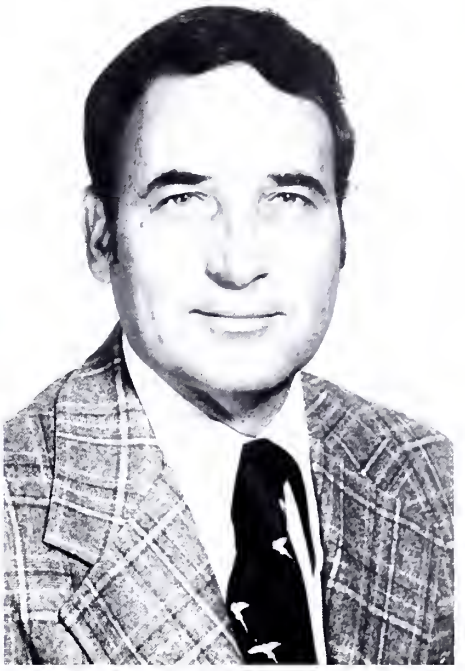
He was named administrative vice president of the Consolidated University in 1970 and served in that position until being unanimously selected by the Board of Trustees as the new chancellor. Taylor replaced J. Carlyle Sitterson.

In his administrative job with the Consolidated University, Taylor had served as a legal adviser to the Consolidated University and had acted as a liaison between the Board of Trustees and its committees.

Chancellor Taylor is married to the former Louise C. Ellington and they have three daughters, Louise, 22; Sarah, 18; and Martha, 15.

HOMER RICE

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR



One of the nation's most highly respected athletic administrators is Homer Rice, director of athletics at the University of North Carolina.

Now in his seventh year at the Tar Heel helm, Rice has a long record of achievements and has his eye on the future as he strives to keep Carolina among the top collegiate powers in the nation.

One of Rice's highest honors came just last year when he was inducted into the International Churchman's Sports Hall of Fame and was named collegiate administrator of the year. He joined an elite group of athletes in that Hall of Fame.

But being at the top is nothing new to Homer Rice. He has been a winner in everything he has undertaken. He revolutionized football offenses with the triple option during his coaching career and now has gained fame in a different way as an administrator.

For three years in a row (1971-73), Rice directed Carolina to the Carmichael Cup, the award symbolic of overall athletic excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Carolina has finished a close second in the Carmichael race for the last two years.

Since he has been at Carolina, Rice has brought about more than 30 additions and improvements to athletic facilities, has helped push Carolina among the national leaders in fundraising for athletic scholarships and has charted the course for future success.

Rice credits much of his success to a personal motivation program he has conceived. He is currently working on a manuscript entitled "The Attitude Technique." This work will contain his ideas for organization, management and motivation for athletic coaching and administration. He recently conducted a seminar on this subject at the Management Institute of the National Association of Collegiate Athletic Directors.

Rice is a strong believer in the total athletic program. This is evident by Carolina's improved showing in recent years in the non-revenue sports. Carolina has a 21-sport varsity program for men and women, one of the largest in the United States. Rice incidentally has put special emphasis in his time here in upgrading athletics for UNC women.

"We invite every student on the Carolina campus to be a part of our program," Rice says, "either as a participant or as a follower of our teams. Traditionally, Carolina has had fantastic school spirit and this, in a large measure, has been responsible for the success of our teams."

Despite his busy schedule in Chapel Hill, Rice finds time to serve in other capacities on the national intercollegiate level. He is a member of the NCAA's prestigious television committee, is involved with the U. S. Congress as a member of a joint committee on education and athletics and serves on various other national committees. He also is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of America.

Rice is only the third man to head the Carolina athletic program in more than 50 years. The late Coach Bob Fetzer was the first, serving from 1922 to 1951. Chuck Erickson succeeded him and held the job until his retirement in mid-1968.

A native of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Rice is the son of a Methodist minister. After serving with the Navy in the Pacific in World War II, he attended Centre College and made the Little All-America team as a football quarterback. He received an A.B. degree from Centre and B.S. and M.E. degrees from Eastern Kentucky State College.

Following his graduation, Rice played professional baseball for three seasons in the old Brooklyn Dodgers' chain. Then he began his career as a football coach.

He coached at Wartburg Central High in Tennessee, Spring City High in Tennessee and Highlands High in Kentucky. In 1961 he received an award as "The Winningest Football Coach in America." His high school coaching record was a fantastic 101-9-7.

Rice then went into college coaching and performed the same kind of magic. He was the top assistant coach at the University of Kentucky and then at the University of Oklahoma where he coached an explosive offensive machine.

In 1967 he was named head coach at the University of Cincinnati and immediately changed the Bearcats' football fortunes. His 1968 team was so explosive that it led the nation in pass offense. It was during this period that his theories on the triple option made him a much-sought-after speaker and instructor.

A book published in 1973, "Homer Rice on Triple Option Football," has drawn raves from football enthusiasts across the country. He has authored two other books on football. The first, "How To Organize Football Practice," was published in 1962 with the other, "The Explosive Short T," coming in 1963.

When Rice does find a few free moments in Chapel Hill, he devotes them to his community. He is on the administrative board of the University Methodist Church and in 1972 was campaign chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Community Chest drive.

He is also on the national conference staff of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Rice wrote the Huddle Prayer for the Pop Warner Little Scholars National Program.

Rice is married to the former Phyllis Wardrup of Middleboro, Ky. They have three lovely daughters. Nancy, 24, is married to Steve Hetherington and they have a young son, Ryce. The other girls are Phyllis, 22, and Angela, 19.

CAROLINA'S PARTICIPATION IN INTERNATIONAL BASKETBALL

Basketball Carolina-Style is not only well-known across America, its fame has spread around the world.

In recent years Carolina players and teams have traveled everywhere from the Great Wall of China to Red Square in Moscow to the beaches of Waikiki.

Carolina has been represented by players in the last three Olympic Games. Larry Brown started this amazing streak in 1964 when he played on the winning U.S. team in Tokyo. Charlie Scott starred on the 1968 squad which swept the Olympic title in Mexico City. Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team at Munich.

Another Tar Heel, trainer John Lacey, is also an Olympic veteran. Lacey was the Olympic basketball trainer in 1964 and then was selected as the head U. S. trainer for the entire Games in 1972.

Of course, Carolina's Olympic representation will continue next year, too. Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith has already been named as Olympic Basketball Coach for the 1976 Games in Montreal.

While the Olympics rank at the top of Carolina's international and overseas competition, there have been plenty of other highlights as well.

Carolina players have been prominent in the last two Pan American Games. Robert McAdoo starred on the U. S. team in 1971, while Tommy LaGarde played on the winning U. S. team in Mexico City last summer. LaGarde also was a member of the U. S. Continental Cup Team which played games in the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, Greece and other parts of Europe last summer.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U. S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971.

In the spring of 1973, a Russian national team toured America, playing a U. S. all-star team. Two of the big stars in that series were George Karl and Bobby Jones.

Later that summer Karl became one of the first Americans ever to go to Red China. He was a member of a U. S. basketball team which played there and was again one of the American heroes.

In the fall of 1973 Mitch Kupchak played on the U. S. Team which won the basketball championship in the World University Games in Moscow.

Carolina took its entire team to Madrid, Spain in 1971 and played in the International Christmas Tournament there. The Tar Heels swept past teams from Brazil and Spain in their first two games before facing Real Madrid, the European champion, in the final game.

In a game televised across Europe, the Tar Heels gave one of their finest performances to win the championship.

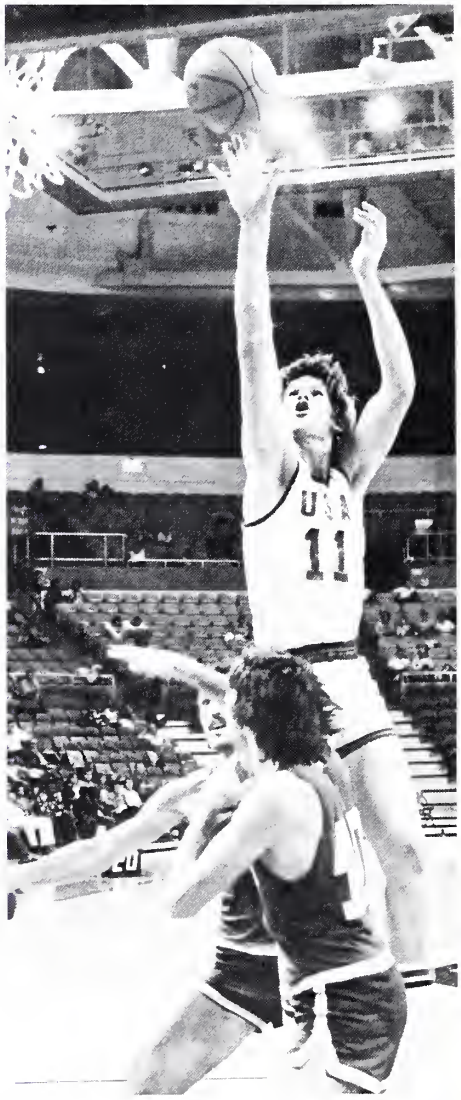
Carolina returned to Spain last December, but was edged by the veteran Real Madrid team in the finals. The Tar Heels did pull a stunning upset, however, beating the powerful Cuban National Team on a last-second shot by Walter Davis.

Another of Carolina's greatest efforts came in 1972. Although not leaving the country, the Tar Heels did fly overseas to win the Rainbow Classic Tournament in Honolulu. With Karl, Kupchak and Jones leading the way, Carolina defeated Louisville for the championship there.

Tar Heel players have also made big names for themselves playing professional basketball in Europe. Doug Moe had the most success, three times being selected European Player of the Year. Other Carolina players who have played in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston and John O'Donnell.

Another chapter in Carolina's international basketball story was written earlier this fall when the Tar Heels hosted the Russian National Team in a game at Carmichael Auditorium.

Mitch Kupchak scores against Cuba in the 1973 World University Games at Moscow.



Tommy LaGarde goes up for two points in Continental Cup competition this year.

With five of the top eight players returning from last year's Atlantic Coast Conference championship team, hopes are high for another successful year in basketball at the University of North Carolina.

Despite posting the school's worst record in five years, Coach Dean Smith's Tar Heels still won 23 of 31 games in 1974-75 and swept their fifth ACC title in nine seasons. That gives Smith more conference championships than any coach in league history.

But now the Tar Heels are faced with a new season and the challenge of defending their league title in one of, if not the toughest basketball conferences in America.

"I'm confident we will again have an outstanding team," says Smith. "The problem is all the other schools in the ACC are also expecting outstanding teams. Many games were close last year, indicating the ACC's great balance. That balance should be even more pronounced this season."

Heading the cast of returning players for Carolina are Mitch Kupchak, 6-10 senior from Brentwood, N. Y.; Walter Davis, 6-5 junior from Pineville, N. C.; Tommy LaGarde, 6-10 junior from Detroit, Mich.; Phil Ford, 6-2 sophomore from Rocky Mount, N. C.; and John Kuester, 6-2 junior from Richmond, Va. Kuester was the top backcourt reserve last season and the other four were starters.

"We certainly expect all five to show improvement this season," says Smith, "and they must if we are to successfully defend our ACC title. Of course, we will miss our three graduated seniors—Brad Hoffman, fifth-round NBA pick Ed Stahl and Mickey Bell."

Hoffman averaged 10.7 points per game for Carolina last year and also had 125 assists. His brilliant outside shooting will be difficult to replace. In Stahl, the Tar Heels lost good size (6-10) and shooting. Bell gave Carolina all-around good play, especially on defense.

"We think we have three legitimate All-America candidates this year in Kupchak, Davis and Ford," says Smith. "They will be among the best players in the country."

All three of those players were sensational in last year's pressure-packed ACC Tournament. All received some All-America mention and should be headed for even bigger years in 1975-76.

Kupchak had a fantastic junior year. He led the Tar Heels in scoring with an 18.5 average and in rebounding with 334. He hit 60.2 per cent of his field goal attempts and played excellent defense. Mitch made the All-ACC, All-ACC Tournament and All-Eastern Regional teams.

Davis finished his sophomore year with a 16.1 scoring average, 137 assists, 195 rebounds and a 50.5 shooting percentage from the field. He was remarkable in the ACC Tournament, hitting 22 of 33 field goal attempts and holding National Player of the Year David Thompson to a 7 for 21 shooting performance in the finals.

Ford broke into the ACC as perhaps no other freshman ever has. He led the Tar Heels in assists with 161, averaged 16.4 points per game and shot 51.6 per cent from the floor. He was voted the Most Valuable Player in the ACC Tournament, scoring 78 points in three games. Phil is an excellent ballhandler and a key man in Carolina's four-corners offense.

LaGarde averaged 7.7 points and had 143 rebounds for the Tar Heels last season. Tommy had some of his best games against national powers N. C. State and Maryland. He has tremendous ability and just needs to be more consistent to develop into an outstanding ACC player.

Kuester saw a great deal of action a year ago and is the leading contender for Hoffman's starting spot in the backcourt. He's a fine passer and ballhandler and has shown steady improvement in his time at Carolina.

However, after the top five, depth could be a problem. Much of Carolina's success will depend on how much help the Tar Heels get from reserves Bill Chambers, Dave Hanners, Bruce Buckley and Tom Zaliagiris.

"This group must improve to contend for starting spots and to give us depth," says Smith. "We want to continue to play seven men as starters so we must get help from these players."

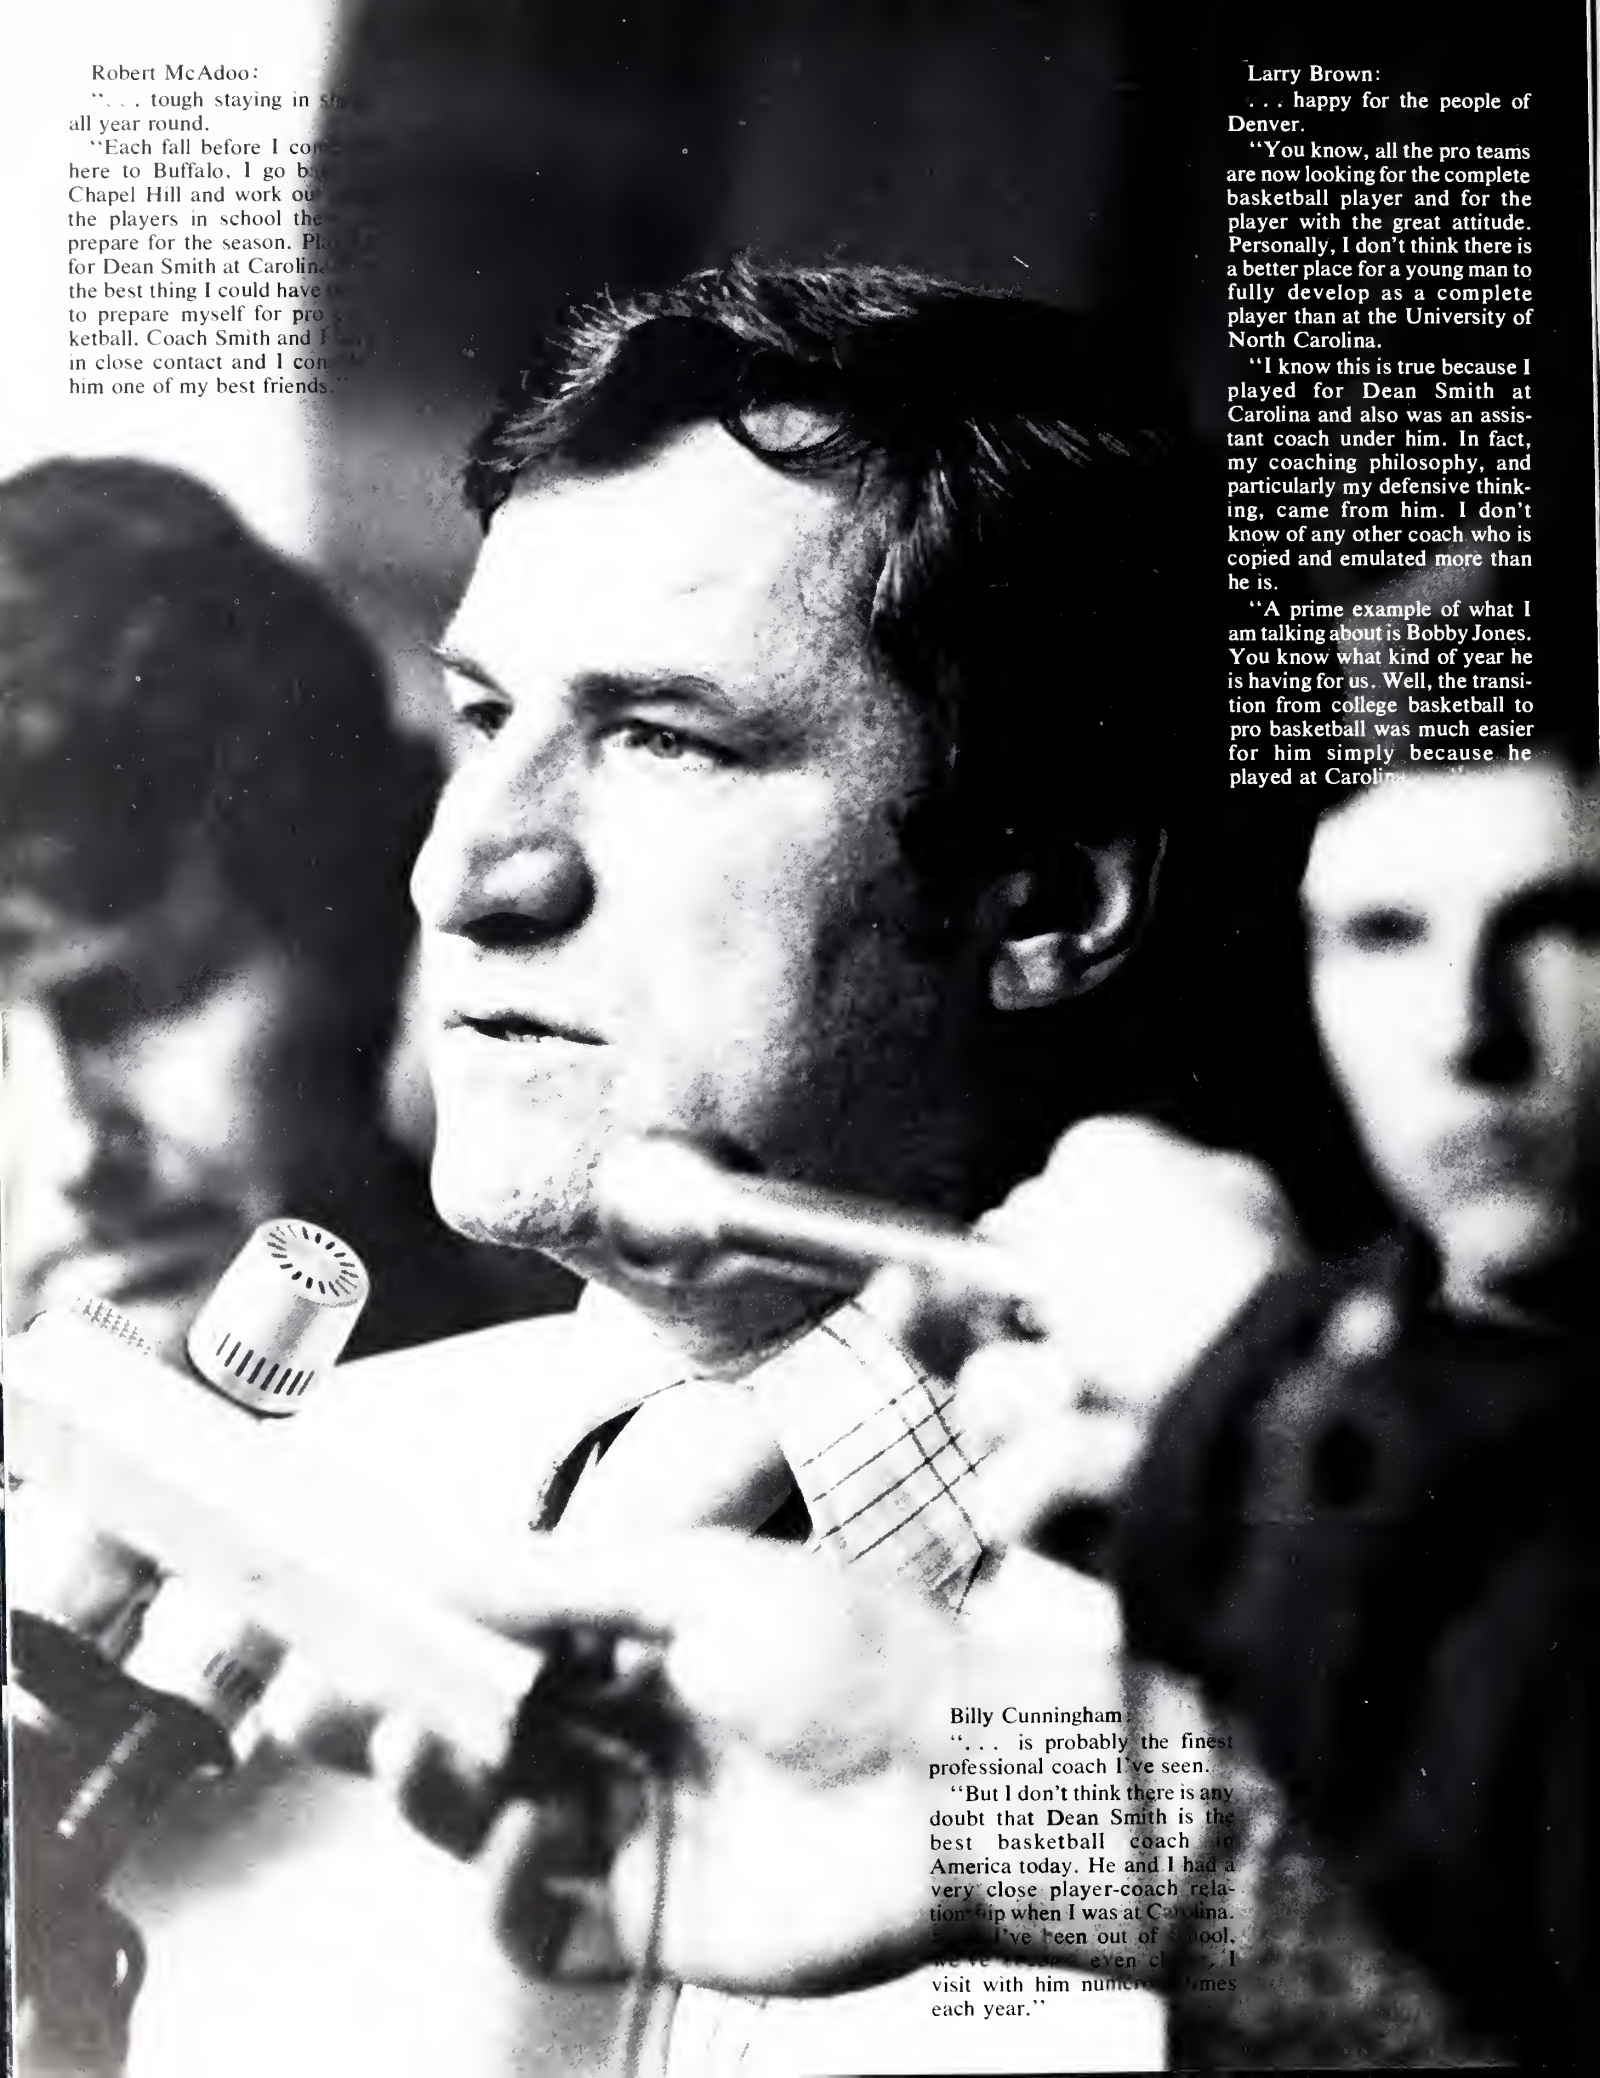
Chambers is a 6-6 senior from Greensboro, N. C.; Hanners is a 6-0 senior from Columbus, O.; Buckley is a 6-8 junior from Bladensburg, Md.; and Zaliagiris is a 6-5 sophomore from Livonia, Mich.

Other backup strength could come from Woody Coley and Eric Harry, who saw action with both the varsity and junior varsity last season; Geff Crompton, who played on the jayvee team two years ago; and any of Carolina's incoming freshmen.

The freshmen include scholarship players Keith Valentine of Richmond, Va.; Loren Lutz of Alamosa, Col.; Dudley Bradley of Edgewood, Md.; and Randy Wiel of Curacao, Netherlands Antilles. A non-scholarship freshman, guard Geb Doughton of Winston-Salem, N. C. is another possibility.

"Overall, I think we will be a fine offensive team," says Smith. "But, we must improve defensively if we hope to rank with other great Carolina defensive teams. We must also get some rebounding help for Kupchak if we hope to rebound with the other teams in the ACC."

The Tar Heel schedule is again challenging. Carolina will play on 11 difficult enemy courts in addition to facing national-finalist Kentucky, Seton Hall, Furman and Georgia Tech on neutral courts.



Robert McAdoo:

Larry Brown:

. . . happy for the people of Denver.

"You know, all the pro teams are now looking for the complete basketball player and for the player with the great attitude. Personally, I don't think there is a better place for a young man to fully develop as a complete player than at the University of North Carolina.

"I know this is true because I played for Dean Smith at Carolina and also was an assistant coach under him. In fact, my coaching philosophy, and particularly my defensive thinking, came from him. I don't know of any other coach who is copied and emulated more than he is.

"A prime example of what I am talking about is Bobby Jones. You know what kind of year he is having for us. Well, the transition from college basketball to pro basketball was much easier for him simply because he played at Carolin

Billy Cunningham:

". . . is probably the finest professional coach I've seen.

"But I don't think there is any doubt that Dean Smith is the best basketball coach in America today. He and I had a very close player-coach relationship when I was at Carolina. I've been out of school, even cl , I visit with him numer mes each year."

College basketball's winningest active coach over the last 10 years.

1976 United States Olympic coach.

DEAN SMITH

Those are just a few of the achievements of Dean Smith, head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina, whose innovations have changed the course of the game and brought great glory to his men in Carolina Blue.

Dean Smith is one nice guy who has never finished last or even close to it. Instead, he makes a habit of finishing first. His Tar Heels did it again last season, sweeping the Atlantic Coast Conference championship tournament and advancing again into NCAA Tournament play.

Smith and his Tar Heels have now won five of the last nine ACC championships and have captured the Eastern Regional crown four of those years. In the same nine-year period, the Tar Heels have won the regular-season ACC championship five times.

In the storied history of the ACC, no coach has ever won as many league titles as Smith.

He has also taken Carolina to a national post-season tournament each of the past nine years. The Tar Heels won the championship of the National Invitation Tournament in New York in 1971.

With John Wooden of UCLA now retired, Smith has moved to the top as the nation's winningest active coach in the past 10 years. During that period, his teams have won 237 games and lost only 68. That's roughly an average of 24-7 per season.

Because of his tremendous success, Smith received one of the greatest honors of his career last spring. He was selected to serve as head coach of the United States basketball team in the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal.

It is fitting that Smith join the Olympic legions because his star players have been prominent figures on each of the past three Olympic teams. Larry Brown starred in the 1964 Games at Tokyo, Charlie Scott helped win the championship at Mexico City in 1968 and Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team at Munich.

There have been only six coaches in America who have taken a team to the final four in NCAA play as many as four times. Smith accomplished that feat in his first 11 years at Carolina. No other coach has ever done it that quickly. Hank Iba made it four times in 32 years, Adolph Rupp six times in 34 years, Jack Gardner four times in 29 years, Fred Taylor four times in 15 years and John Wooden 12 times in 26 years.

Smith now looks ahead to his 15th season at the Tar Heel helm. His overall record is 287-104. That averages out to approximately 21-7 a year.

How does Smith work all this magic? It is a combination of things. He has tremendous rapport with his players, he is a master teacher and his style of play gets amazing results.

Carolina teams under Smith are noted for unselfish play, great teamwork and a tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also have a disciplined attack and usually lead the nation in field goal percentage. The Tar Heels have also led the ACC in scoring five of the last nine years.

Among Smith's many innovations are his run-and-jump defense; the mixing of pressure defenses; the point zone; team huddles at the foul line; foul lane alignment; and the famed four-corners offense. His free-lance passing game has also begun to attract national attention.

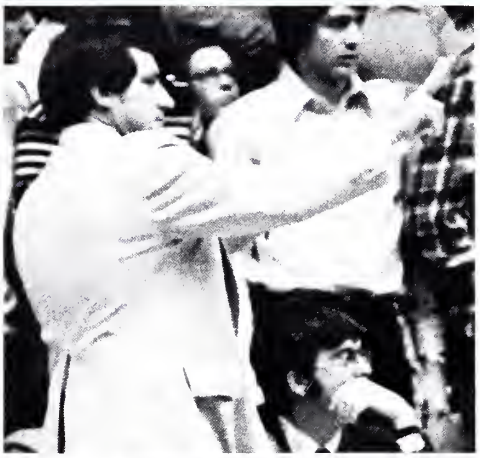
His defensive and offensive schemes are constantly studied by other coaches across the country. Many college coaches visit the Carolina campus during the off-season to get tips from Smith. Even professional coaches seek his advice and ideas.

In fact, Smith has been offered numerous other coaching jobs, both on the college and professional level. He has turned them all down and says he has no desire to coach in the pros.

"The biggest enjoyment of this business is working with young players," says Smith. "I take special pride in their development. I've always been very happy living here in Chapel Hill."

Smith's success at Carolina has been shared by those around him. Two of his assistants, Kenny Rosemond and John Lotz, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Another former aide, Larry Brown, is a successful professional coach with the Denver Nuggets.

Winner of more league championships than any coach in Atlantic Coast Conference history.



In the last 10 years alone, 14 of Smith's players have gone on to play pro basketball. They include former ABA Player-of-the-Year Billy Cunningham, NBA Player-of-the-Year Robert McAdoo and perennial all-star Charlie Scott.

A native of Emporia, Kansas, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of the Kansas basketball team which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was assistant basketball coach and baseball coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by Frank McGuire, then the Tar Heels' coach. When McGuire left to join the professional ranks in 1961, Smith was named the head coach.

His first team, caught with slim material, had an 8-9 record. There have been no losers since then and the odds are that there never will be.

Smith's Carolina teams have swept an unbelievable total of 18 tournament championships since he took the head job. The Tar Heels captured five tournament titles during the 1971-72 campaign alone.

Smith is a great good-will ambassador for the University. He is called upon to lecture at basketball clinics all over the world. He has been a member of the national rules committee. Smith makes hundreds of speeches each year. His basketball camp for youngsters at Carolina is so popular that he never advertises it.

In his spare time, Smith plays golf, shooting in the 70's. He also enjoys tennis, spinning records and reading books on a variety of subjects. He has a special interest in theology. He often takes time from his busy schedule to have lunch or dinner with a religion professor.

Smith is extremely proud of his three children—Sharon, 20; Sandy, 19; and Scott, 17.

BILL GUTHRIDGE

COACH

Bill Guthridge, Dean Smith's chief assistant at North Carolina, is widely recognized in college basketball as one of the best all-around coaches in the game today.

Guthridge's strength lies in his thorough mastery of all the integral parts of coaching—as teacher, organizer, motivator and recruiter. He has been highly sought as a head coach by numerous athletic directors.

The native Kansan is entering his ninth year on the Tar Heel staff and third as Smith's top aide. During his first six years at Carolina, Guthridge was a co-assistant with John Lotz, now head coach at the University of Florida.

"Bill is one of the top coaches in America, and that includes head coaches as well as assistants," says Smith. "His record as an assistant here and at Kansas State has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

In his eight years at Carolina, Guthridge has helped guide the Tar Heels to eight post-season tournaments, four Atlantic Coast Conference championships and the National Invitation Tournament Title in 1971.

While assisting with the varsity, Guthridge has also coached UNC freshman and junior varsity teams, compiling a six-year 72-25 record and winning the Big Four championship four times.

Smith gives him much of the credit for developing the players who have kept North Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

One of Guthridge's main duties in his first six years here was assisting with Carolina's defense. He then became the Tar Heels' chief shooting instructor.

Carolina has shot better than 50 per cent from the field and 70 per cent from the free throw line for the past four seasons, including 53.6 per cent from the field and 72.7 per cent from the free throw line last season.

Before coming to Chapel Hill, Guthridge was an assistant coach at Kansas State, his alma mater. During his time as an assistant, the Wildcats had a 93-43 record, won two Big Eight Conference titles and once advanced to the NCAA semifinals.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who were the innovators of the zone press in the 1930s.

Guthridge went on to start for Kansas State from 1958-60 while the Wildcats reigned as Big Eight champions. He was chosen as one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Following graduation, Guthridge coached for two years at Scott City (Kan.) High before returning to Kansas State as an assistant to the famed Tex Winter.

Besides working for Winter and Smith, two of the most prominent names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rican summer leagues for two years. He was once named coach of the year and was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympics, but had to turn down the offer because of his work here.

Guthridge works closely with Smith in all phases of the Tar Heel program and has turned down several major college coaching jobs while having his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Not only is Bill an astute basketball technician," says Smith, "but he also is an excellent teacher. He is highly respected by the players who have been through our program. He is sincere in his recruiting and I think this has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable," says Guthridge. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

Guthridge has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at UNC toward his Ph.D.

A popular after-dinner speaker, he has an excellent sense of humor and is a keen follower of other sports besides basketball. In his spare time, Guthridge likes to play golf and he still avidly follows the St. Louis Cardinal baseball team.

Guthridge and his wife Leesie have two sons, Jamie, 15, and Stuart, 12; and one daughter, Megan, 3½.

EDDIE FOGLER

COACH

From the moment Eddie Fogler came to North Carolina as a freshman, it was evident he had exceptional basketball knowledge and playmaking abilities.

Now beginning his third season as a Tar Heel assistant coach, Fogler has also become a top-flight recruiter and travels extensively for coach Dean Smith.

"Eddie has unusual sincerity in recruiting and he is an excellent recruiter because of this sincerity," says Smith. "He genuinely loves the University and as a result, he can present it well."

Fogler has a solid background in fundamental basketball, having learned the game playing against tough competition as a youngster in New York City and then gaining valuable insights while playing for Smith.

"Eddie brings a bright mind to the coaching profession," says Smith. "He really was like an assistant coach on the floor in his playing days here when he quarterbacked some of our championship teams. He's a hard worker and has great enthusiasm for the sport. I think he's got a great future in coaching."

A New York native, Fogler was a guard for Carolina's varsity from 1968-70 and started his last two seasons. The 1968 and 1969 teams won Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern Regional championships and advanced to the national finals.

As a player here, Fogler was highly regarded as a clever ball-handler and a smart player on the court. He was also one of the last practitioners of the two-handed shot. Fogler still ranks seventh among UNC's all-time assist leaders.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1970, Fogler spent a year teaching and coaching at DeMatha High School in Washington, D. C. and was in charge of the DeMatha junior varsity.

He returned to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1971 as a graduate assistant. Fogler worked that season with the Carolina freshmen and also helped with recruiting and scouting. He earned his master's degree in 1972.

In 1973, Fogler joined the UNC staff full-time and has made a valuable contribution. Although he has already received a head coaching offer from a major college, he says he is perfectly happy in Chapel Hill.

"I guess I day-dream about being a head coach," he says, "but that is in the far distant future. Meanwhile, I couldn't find a better place to work than right here."

Fogler is one of the most popular members of the athletic staff. He enjoys playing all sports in his spare time. He is a bachelor.

CHAMPIONSHIP TRAINER

Held in utmost esteem by his peers is John Lacey, North Carolina's head athletic trainer. Now in his 19th season at Chapel Hill, Lacey is one of the most respected men in his profession.

Lacey received one of the highest honors of his career when he was selected head trainer of the United States delegation to the Olympic Games in Munich in 1972. It was his second trip to the Olympics with the American team. In 1964 he trained the Olympic basketball team which won the gold medal at Tokyo.

Throughout his career, Lacey has been associated with championship teams. He has gone to the national collegiate basketball finals five times with Carolina—in 1957 (when UNC was national champion), 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1972. Lacey has also made four trips to the National Invitation Tournament, including 1971 when the Tar Heels won the title.

As football trainer, he has worked with eight bowl teams, including five here.

Lacey was brought to Chapel Hill in 1956 from Maryland by the late Jim Tatum when Tatum was named Carolina's head football coach. He had worked closely with Tatum at Maryland. While there, he trained two Orange Bowl teams and a Sugar Bowl squad.

His background also includes a stint as trainer for three professional football teams—the Chicago Rockets, New York Yankees and Baltimore Colts.

A native of Wallingford, Conn., Lacey studied at Yale in physical therapy and at the Tilton School in Tilton, N. H. He is married to the former Barbara Koch of Wallingford.

A TOWN TOUCHED BY STRANGE MAGIC – CHAPEL HILL

This is a town touched by strange magic and one to which its peoples, many of them a curious breed, hold a rare and somewhat inexplicable attachment. Our town has no rivers, no mountains, no seas, but in the spring it is beautiful and in all seasons it is both wonderful and sad, romantic in the spirit of the youth it harbors in the educational process of the great State University, which is the town's principal industry.

Chapel Hill, where bells wake you in the morning, regardless of whether you live in the Beta house, Cobb dormitory or on Laurel Hill Road, and where the bells keep ringing periodically the day long, with the chimes taking over in the majesty of twilight and on certain important occasions such as the big football games.

Not, really, a village any more, although its inhabitants, some living in the past, like to consider it as such . . . None of us will go so far as to say that it possesses the tranquillity and serenity of the Twenties, when Thomas Wolfe, and Paul Green and LeGette Blythe and "Monk" McDonald and the Carmichaels found adventure, melancholy and beauty in their diverse pursuits on the old campus and the unexplored lands beyond . . . It is not as small, and not quite as nice, but almost, and there is a whole new world of knowledge to be discovered here with resources of mind and matter in abundance.

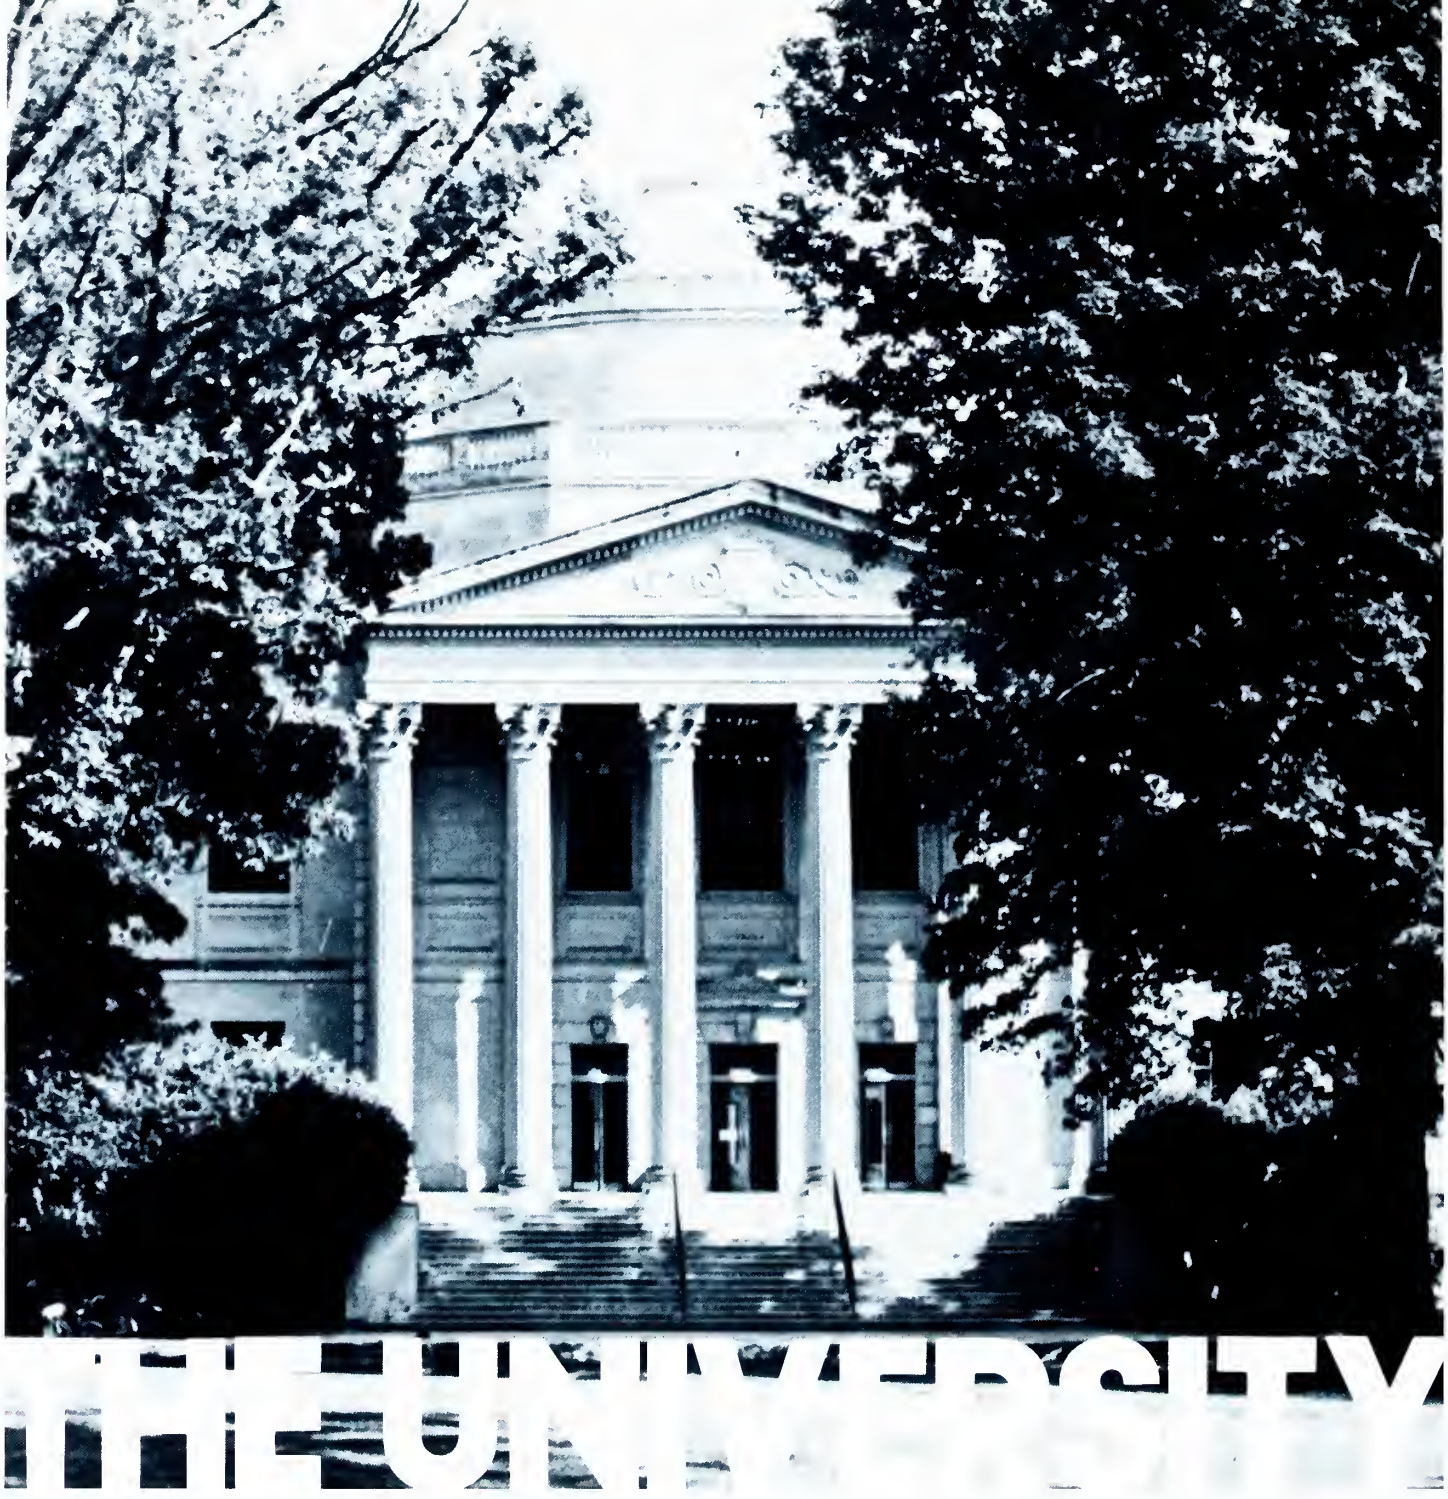
Chapel Hill, where the civic clubs do not sing, salute flags or wear badges, but unostentatiously and quietly engage in humanitarian projects as earnestly as their backslapping counterparts of the cities . . . Where its only commercial radio station taboos hillbilly tunes and plays sweet music and deathless great arias.

In Chapel Hill that man in dungarees, coming out of the post office, is just as apt to be a best-selling novelist as the town's leading plumber or the divorced author of profound treatises on the science of nuptial compatibility . . . Where shoe shines, on the most modest leather, cost you twenty cents per copy, with the same treatment from five to ten cents cheaper in a much larger town across the way, but there you are not waited on by one of the town's most popular citizens who contributes philosophy, sound sense and remarkably accurate football prognostications as a dividend to the dab of mundane polish.

People in our town go to church, pray, are kind and considerate, both the students and the townspeople, as in all towns . . . But where some of the ministers never wear hats, do wear sweaters, and sometimes drive the more modest editions of those little foreign make sports cars, but their democracy in manners is no compromise with the dignity of their souls, for our town is blessed with able and Godly preachers.

Chapel Hillians, like the folks in your town or city, play poker and bridge but, strangely, little or no gin rummy, and they play golf and handball . . . Chapel Hill, where the tiniest tots are able swimmers, and old men play an exciting brand of tennis . . . Where there are circles and cliques, as in all towns, for the socials, round tables and sports, but where those who travel together are frequently of oddly dissimilar tastes . . . A famous singer breaks bread often and attends games with a Kenan professor . . . A coach has tea regularly with a brilliant author . . . A university department head finds more wisdom, truth and beauty in the philosophy of a bistro keeper than in the ivory towers of his own intellectual level and prefers his company . . . But Chapel Hill is a town of neighbors who are bird watchers and who tend their flowers with loving care and talk over stone walls and drink their coffee or cocktails while talking oftenest about their children and grandchildren . . . That's Chapel Hill. God bless our town and its gentle way of life.

The late Jake Wade wrote this piece a good many years ago. Even today, it captures the spirit of this Town as well as anything we know. Mr. Wade was director of sports publicity at the University at the time of his death.



Chapel Hill, the home of the University of North Carolina, is a different place. A small town with almost as many students as townspeople, it has an unusual tolerance for all sorts of individuals, from the most rock-ribbed conservative to the most free-thinking liberal.

It has a charming and beautiful environment, with tall, stately trees, rustic buildings and fine, old homes and a pleasant, appealing atmosphere. The town and campus, thought of as one and the same, retain a magnetic attraction which keep old graduates returning year after year.

The late Jake Wade once described it as "a town touched by strange magic." There is an ideal mixture of youth and old traditions, quiet and exuberance, an unhurried pace and a vision of the future.

Time magazine has called Chapel Hill "one of the 20 most enjoyable places to live in the United States."

The school itself is the oldest state university in the nation, first admitting students in 1795 while George Washington was President. However, it was not until after Reconstruction that Carolina began making the rapid progress that has lifted it to the top of southern education.

There are currently 14 schools at Carolina and more than 70 departments and other academic affiliated divisions and institutes.

Strong in both the humanities and the sciences, the University also has a School of Business Administration of special potency, commensurate with the growing industrial might of the mid-South.

UNC is one of six universities in the nation with a full range of health professional schools, including medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing and public health. North Carolina Memorial Hospital is the University's teaching and research hospital and is a teaching center for hundreds of clinics in 100 North Carolina counties.

Among the dozens of institutes and specialized programs affiliated with the medical complex are the Health Services Research Center, the Hand Rehabilitation Center, the Child Development and Mental Retardation Research Institute and the Dental Research Center, each of which is one of only a few centers of its kind in the country.

Carolina is one of the largest and top-ranking universities in the nation. A recent rating of graduate schools by the American Council on Education put 12 UNC graduate departments in the highest category and 12 in the second highest. This made Carolina the leader of all universities, public or private, in the Southeast.

Alan Carter of the ACE describes Carolina as "the leading southern university, a liberal voice in the region."

In annual choices made by southern graduate scholars in the Rockefeller grants, more select graduate study at Chapel Hill than any other place.

The University is continuing to grow as it strives to keep pace with the changing world of today. Growth has been especially tremendous in the last 20 years. Those two decades have seen the establishment of the School of Journalism, the School of Business Administration, the Carolina Population Center, the WUNC-TV educational television station, the Ackland Art Center and a new computer system.

In that same time buildings have multiplied; student enrollment has reached nearly 20,000; the faculty has grown to over 1,200; new courses have been added to the curriculum and old ones revised; adult education courses have expanded; and scholarship and development programs have grown.

Here are some other facts of interest about one of America's great universities:

—Carolina's Morehead Planetarium was the first planetarium on a university campus in the world. It features special programs and exhibits and is a training base for U.S. astronauts. The unique Planetarium Sundial allows one to determine the correct time anywhere in the world.

—Thirty-one of North Carolina's 50 governors have been Carolina graduates.

—One of the best-known organizations on campus is the Carolina Playmakers. Former members of the Playmakers include Thomas Wolfe, Paul Green and Betty Smith.

—James K. Polk, an 1818 graduate, became the 11th President of the United States.

—The Institute of Government on campus is a training center for city, county and state officials and employees. It is also involved in research and consultations for state and local governments.

—The University's television network feeds programs into North Carolina public schools.

—In a traditional program of student self-government, undergraduates have their own legislature, system of honor courts and student publications. These include a daily newspaper, "The Daily Tar Heel."

—Another feature is the Institute for Research in Social Science, an organization performing fact-finding duties in sociology, economics, humanities, statistics, journalism and other fields, including race relations, urban studies and regional development.

But perhaps the most outstanding feature of the University is the gentle way the new has been blended with the old to form one of the most beautiful campuses in the world.

Ivy-covered buildings and tree-lined walkways surround spacious, grassy greens where students lounge between classes. Tall pines cover south campus where modern buildings are under construction.

In direct contrast are Gerard Hall, built in 1837, and Old East, the oldest state university building in the nation. The cornerstone to Old East was laid in 1793 and the dorm was dedicated as a national shrine in 1966.

Other famous and beautiful spots around campus are the Old Well, the Davie Poplar, the Carolina Inn, the botanical gardens and Gimghoul Castle.

Despite the change and growth, the basic beauty of this area remains the same. It still truly is "the Southern Part of Heaven."

CAROLINA'S G

Out of the exciting past of Carolina basketball has come some of the greatest names the game has ever known—from Cartwright Carmichael and Jack Cobb of the Roaring Twenties to Robert McAdoo and Bobby Jones of the Sizzling Seventies.

It all started way back in 1911 when the Tar Heels fielded their first team and the sport has been getting bigger and bigger ever since. Few universities in the United States have produced as many All-America players as Carolina and the list grows longer almost every year.

Carolina first hit the big-time in the sport in 1924 when the Tar Heels won 23 games in a row and swept the National championship. Stars of that great team were Cobb, Carmichael and Monk McDonald.

While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars. Cobb, in fact, is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame.

Although the Tar Heels did not have an all-America like Cobb in the 1930s, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the all-Southern Conference team during that era.

The big star of the early 1940s was George Glamack—"The Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he shot with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time all-America, Helms Player of the Year in 1941 and now is in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A and M and big Bob Kurland in the national finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordon, in fact, had been an all-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later, the Tar Heels again reached the national finals. This time, they won, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever.

Lean Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He was named National Player of the Year. Rosenbluth was a great shooter and still holds the UNC career scoring record. Other starters on that team were Pete Brennan (who made all-America the next year), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham.

The stars were many during the 1960s. Big Lee Schaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1960. Schaffer was a great scorer and later became an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of the decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now is an assistant coach with the Denver Nuggets.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a diminutive guard who rates as one of the finest playmakers Carolina has had. Brown played on the 1964 Olympic team which swept the Gold Medal. He now is head coach of the Denver Nuggets.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time all-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made all-America in 1965. The "Kangaroo Kid," now is a star for the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA.

Bob Lewis, a thin sharpshooter from Washington, D. C., stepped into Cunningham's shoes as the next star performer. He holds the Carolina school scoring record with 49 points against Florida State.

One of UNC's greatest players was Larry Miller, an all-America in 1968 when he led his team to the national finals where they lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA. Miller twice was named ACC Player of the Year. Playing at 6-4 and 215, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Rusty Clark were Carolina starters on teams which won three straight ACC regular season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the final four in the nation.

Bunting had a great senior season and made all-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina blue and was a sparkling playmaker and scorer. Clark was a tough defensive performer and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott—who may have been the greatest of them all. Charlie excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his senior year and was voted ACC Athlete of the Year. In 1968, he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games.

Three brilliant frontcourt players —Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the National Invitation Tournament in 1971 as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and a rugged, aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. They led the Tar Heels to the NCAA Final Four in 1972.

Then came George Karl, another highly popular player who amazed fans with his daring and diving on the court. He started for three years and made the All-ACC team.

The most recent superstar was Bobby Jones, one of the most complete players ever to play the college game. Jones had great quickness around the basket and was a sensational defender.

CAROLINA'S FIRST GREAT TEAM

by Owen Davis

Basketball was still a struggling sport when North Carolina won its first national championship in 1924.

There were almost no full-sized courts in the state and the few gymnasiums anywhere were mainly limited to large cities. Basketball, only 33 years old at the time, had not developed rules or discovered shots which would later make the game popular.

Every basket was followed by a center jump, screening was illegal and the jump shot had not been invented.

Carolina did have the benefit of a new gymnasium when the 1923-24 season began, officially named the Indoor Athletic Court and promptly nicknamed the Tin Can. But it was a simple steel structure heated by pot-bellied stoves, which were not enough to combat the cold, night air in the wintertime.

Somehow, under those rather primitive conditions, the Tar Heels assembled a remarkable group of athletes who made up the University's first unbeaten basketball team. They went 23-0 and easily captured the Southern tournament.

Cartwright Carmichael, Jack (Sprat) Cobb, Monk McDonald—today, they remain three of North Carolina's outstanding athletes of all time. Along with Bill Dodderer, they were all-Southern in 1924.

Carmichael was Carolina's first All-America in any sport and he received that honor twice, Cobb three times. Cobb was national player of the year in 1926 and was later inducted into the College Basketball Hall of Fame. McDonald was an exceptional three-sport performer.

And this year their coach, Norman Shepard, joined Cobb in the Hall of Fame.

The 1924 team was an overpowering unit, averaging 36.7 points a game to its opponents' 19.5 and having few close scrapes. Shepard, now 78 and retired in Sarasota, Fla., vividly recalls that championship season more than 50 years ago.

"We had six boys who would have played on anybody's team at any time in the history of basketball, as far as I know," says Shepard, who later coached at Guilford, Davidson, Randolph-Macon and Harvard. "That 1924 team was characterized by quickness and speed.

"It was a very, very fast team and we used the fast break effectively. We had outstanding ball-handlers, too. Basketball to me is quickness of hands and feet and we had that."

Carmichael and McDonald were returning veterans in 1923-24 while Cobb, Dodderer and Billy Devin were sophomores. Team captain Winton Green was injured early in the year and didn't play after that but Devin was a competent replacement.

"I had inherited a very good group of boys from the team before," says Shepard, only 26 when he coached the national champions. "Carmichael and McDonald were exceptionally good and I had coached Cobb and Dodderer and Devin on the freshman team.

"McDonald wasn't too big a guy (5-7) and he was on the order of this Monte Towe who played at N. C. State. Carmichael and Cobb were so fast and quick with their faking and feinting and breaking.

"They did things so beautifully and gracefully that they would dominate their opponents. Some sportswriters said North Carolina had a great ball club and also put on a show, but they weren't putting on a show. They just did things with effortless ease.

"Sometimes they made their opponents look a little awkward. They would be outstanding players today and any other time."

Dodderer was a 6-4 center while Cobb was 6-2 and Carmichael about 6-1, "a sizable team in those days," says Shepard. "Our standard shot was a two-handed chest shot but we had all the layups you have now. Carmichael could drive for the basket with unbelievable speed and hold himself in the air for a long time, like he was suspended. Sportswriters in Atlanta were searching for adjectives for the beautiful defense our team played. They called us shadows and ghosts on defense.

"Carolina has always had a basketball tradition and the boys I'm talking about put the tradition in the limelight. They established Carolina as the team to beat. It's been that way pretty consistently ever since."

The '24 team attracted considerable attention in Chapel Hill and the surrounding area, says Shepard.

"Names like Carmichael, Cobb and McDonald were household words," he says. "They had drawing power. When we played in the Tin Can, we had about 1,000 or 1,500 seats and they were all filled with fans standing all around the place. Bob Fetzer and I got up enough money to get it built.

"The Tin Can was probably the nicest place to play in North Carolina then. It had a maximum-sized court and not many colleges had that. Maybe it gave us an advantage over other teams.

"In those days, basketball was a YMCA game and there was no place to play but in the cities. World War I gave a great impetus to the building of buildings for basketball. So many boys couldn't get in the service for physical fitness reasons that they started promoting physical education in the schools. Basketball began spreading its wings after the war."

Shepard had played basketball while growing up in Wilmington and as a student at Carolina and Davidson. An artilleryman in Europe during World War I, he coached the UNC freshman teams for two years as an undergraduate and was named varsity coach after graduation. He was ineligible to play as an undergraduate because he had pitched three summers in the Southern Baseball Association.

"A lot of people were very skeptical when I was appointed coach," he says.

Shepard left Carolina after the '24 season for an interesting business career—selling tobacco products in Mainland China for five years. He traveled all over China and once coached a Chinese basketball team in the Far Eastern Olympics. Shepard was married in Peking. After returning to the United States, he coached college basketball and baseball, compiling a 327-276 basketball record, and retired as Harvard's baseball coach in 1968.

Three of his brothers remained in Chapel Hill and served in high administrative positions for UNC—George (Bo), Alex and the late Carlyle Shepard.

"Chapel Hill was really heaven back in the teens and '20s," says Norman Shepard. "It was a little polished village and really was a garden spot. Everybody who went there loved it."

CARMICHAEL AUDITORIUM

On winter nights in North Carolina when few people normally are stirring about, the most raucous place in the state is Carmichael Auditorium in Chapel Hill, home of the Carolina Tar Heels.

Carmichael is typically packed with overflowing crowds of partisan, enthusiastic fans. UNC followers call the Auditorium "Blue Heaven" but it has hardly been heaven for visiting teams.

Since Carmichael was opened in 1965, the Tar Heels have an 81-11 record at home. In the past eight years, Carolina has played before 70 sellout crowds in 74 appearances in Chapel Hill.

Strange things have happened to opponents in Carmichael. In 1974, arch-rival Duke was leading the Tar Heels by eight points with 17 seconds left but Carolina came back to win in overtime. Last season defending NCAA champion N. C. State was ambushed in Carmichael, 76-74.

Carmichael Auditorium is located in the tall pine trees at the heart of the UNC campus. It is considered one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the country.

The Auditorium was opened in 1965 and has been the home of five Atlantic Coast Conference championship teams, four Eastern Regional champions and one National Invitation Tournament champion. Carolina captured its 1,000th victory at Carmichael four years ago, defeating Virginia 91-78.

Ticket buyers always wait in long lines for a chance to see a game in the 8,800-seat arena, and students often sleep in the auditorium halls the night before tickets go on sale for a big battle.

Most of the UNC athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic director Homer Rice and head basketball coach Dean Smith have their offices there. The halls are lined with sketches of many of Carolina's most outstanding athletes and there are five trophy cases containing awards and pictures from all sports.

The Auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He left a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with UNC.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later vice-president of the Consolidated University. He also served for a time as the Consolidated University's acting president. He died in 1961.

The Auditorium adjoins Woollen Gymnasium, long-time site of varsity competition and now the center of Carolina's physical education and intramural activities.

(DEAD BALL REBOUNDS: UNC-63: OPP-56)

Carolina players are ranked in the UNC offensive statistics by a composite rating of field goal accuracy, free throw accuracy and rebound, point and assist average. The leader in each category gets 14 points, the second 13, etc. Thus, the highest a player can score is 70.0. Defensive statistics and some offensive statistics are not included in this system.

ERNIE WILLIAMSON

Carolina's man for all seasons is Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation.

Regardless of the time of year, Ernie is always on the move—speaking to Foundation members, talking to prospective members and following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va. played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to professional football and played with Los Angeles and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Ernie returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

He is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.

EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina.

As the Tar Heel sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It is the enthusiasm and generosity of Foundation members which allows Carolina to field its excellent athletic teams.

"Interest reaches a new peak every year," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president. "There are many reasons for this, but the most important has been our great success in all sports the last few years."

The Educational Foundation currently has over 2,500 members who finance a scholarship program that costs over $600,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 2,000 student-athletes," says Williamson. "The majority of these men are anxious to return contributions which would enable us to award scholarships to others."

Williamson has always contended that a donation to the Foundation is not specifically a donation to the athletics. He says that the high caliber young man who is awarded an athletic scholarship is a great representative of the University.

Williamson feels the overall bonus is in helping a worthy young man obtain a college education. Athletics come second.

Any donation to the Educational Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $100 or more.

"To my knowledge, Carolina is the only school which has an endowment program for athletic scholarships," adds Williamson. "At the present time we have seven endowed scholarships and ten members who are contributing toward an endowed scholarship. Under this program, we have life memberships available and also accept wills and bequests to the athletic program."

Foundation members receive priority on seat locations for football and basketball. A special room on the south wing of Kenan Field House serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic facilities for those who come early.

"A Foundation membership is a badge of prestige and loyalty to the University," Williamson points out. "Many of our finest members, however, did not necessarily attend Carolina. They just heard about our program and felt it was worthy."

It is important to point out that all donations to the Foundation are tax deductible.

ORIGIN AND INCORPORATION

Three loyal and athletic-minded University of North Carolina alumni met in the office of Secretary of State Thad Eure at Raleigh in December of 1938 and organized the Educational Foundation, Inc.

The men were John Umstead Jr. of Chapel Hill, Max Abernethy of Raleigh, and Benton Stacy of Reidsville.

A charter was drawn with these three men as the incorporators and submitted to the late O. Max Gardner, who had his law firm clear it with the Internal Revenue Department as a charitable organization. The charter was issued December 7, 1938.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Educational Foundation, Inc. is to raise funds for providing scholarships or grants-in-aid at the University to worthy and qualified high school students with athletic ability.

The Educational Foundation, Inc. operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It has the blessing and good will of all the University administration and, in its unique field, occupies a status similar to that of the Business Foundation, the Medical Foundation, and other money-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

The full amount of all donations of Foundation members is used for scholarships and grants. The organization has no administrative expense.
